3. Reasons for revision of forecast

The main reasons for revisions of forecasts are stated as follows;

- ①Extraordinary losses: JPY 16.0bn over the fiscal year, FY3/07
- Early application of the cost or market accounting method to the real estates for sale and the real estates in progress: JPY 7.9bn
  - Losses in the development business: JPY 5.1bn
(Cut down the selling price to the early disposal possible value)
  - Impairment loss on the fixed asset of the golf course: JPY 1.5bn
- ②Larger-than-expected decrease in ordinary profit:
- This is mainly due to bidding suspension from the list of officially designated bidders for public work contracts, especially in civil engineering projects.
  - The consolidated ordinary profit forecast is revised downward to JPY 3.0bn from JPY 8.0bn.

The balance sheet restructuring is almost finished and the financial soundness is improved remarkably after posting the above extraordinary losses in the current term.

The downturn in profits for FY3/07 is attributed mainly to bidding suspension and its impact is only temporary. From the next fiscal year, FY3/08, the earnings from the Haneda airport expansion project (total sales of JPY 60bn) will be contributed. We are making every effort to enhance the competitiveness and to reduce SG&A and construction work costs. A major upturn in profits is, therefore, expected for FY3/08.
